OVERVIEW

Sydney Binkley is an associate and a member of the Commercial Disputes practice group. Sydney's practice includes a wide variety of complex civil litigation throughout the United States and internationally, including complex commercial disputes, insurance recovery and counseling, and healthcare litigation. Sydney's primary focus is payor-provider disputes, specifically representing healthcare providers in disputes with major United States payor insurance companies.

Sydney has experience representing clients at all stages of litigation, including drafting demand letters, complaints, and motions. Sydney plays an active role in the discovery phase of litigation, with experience managing complex and voluminous document reviews, preparing and responding to discovery related requests, resolving discovery disputes, and preparing for fact and expert witness depositions. Sydney further provides real time support to senior lawyers throughout fact and expert witness examinations.

Sydney actively participates in the firm's Cyber Civil Rights Legal Project, where she helps victims of nonconsensual pornography, or "revenge porn," by providing them legal assistance on a pro bono basis.

PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND

Prior to joining the firm as an associate, Sydney served as a summer associate in the Newark office where she performed research and prepared legal memoranda regarding a variety of legal issues, including insurance recovery, environmental law, and products liability. Sydney returned to the firm during her final year of law school as a law clerk, where she assisted with insurance recovery, specifically healthcare payor-provider disputes.

During law school, Sydney interned with a New Jersey Superior Court judge and served as a law clerk to a New Jersey law firm where she worked on a wide variety of civil litigation matters, ranging from family law to property-related disputes.

At Seton Hall University School of Law, Sydney was the president of the First Generation Law Students Association, a member of the FINRA Investor Advocacy Clinic, and a pro bono student advocate for the District of New Jersey Settlement Conference Practicum. Sydney also served as a comments editor for the Seton Hall Law Review.

Prior to law school, Sydney was a legal secretary for a solo practitioner, where she worked on residential real estate transactions and estate planning matters.

ACHIEVEMENTS
