OVERVIEW

Kowe Kadoma is a patent technical specialist and member of the IP Procurement and Portfolio Management practice group. She has vast knowledge regarding computer science and electrical engineering, and extensive research experience in artificial intelligence (AI). Prior to joining the firm, Kowe served in patent support roles across private practice and in-house settings, where she assisted with drafting patent applications, preparing Office Action responses, and supporting patent strategy initiatives.

Kowe has experience performing prior art searches, conducting inventor and examiner interviews, evaluating invention disclosures, and developing prosecution strategies for software, electrical engineering, and AI-related technologies. Her background also includes supporting global patent portfolio management efforts and assisting with both prosecution and litigation-related matters involving emerging technologies.

PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND

In addition to her patent experience, Kowe brings a strong technical foundation in computer engineering and information science, with research experience in machine learning, data science, and human-centered computing.
